PENNIES FOR CHARITY - 2002

In light of the events of September 11, 2001, Pennies for Charity, the Attorney General's annual report of telemarketing campaigns in New York, has taken on new significance. Since September 11, New Yorkers and other Americans have made unprecedented contributions to charity. They have also made clear that they expect and demand that their contributions be used to benefit the people and the programs served by the charities.

The New York State Attorney General's Charities Bureau prepared this report to show members of the public how much of their contributions solicited by telemarketers actually supports charitable programs. Pennies for Charity may be used by contributors to decide which charities they wish to support. Charitable organizations may also consult this report to evaluate the performance of professional fundraisers prior to, during or after engaging their services.

FINDINGS

A total of $184.7 million was raised as a result of the 588 telemarketing campaigns included in this report. The $184.7 million includes funds raised in New York and other states during 2001 telemarketing campaigns of charitable organizations registered to solicit contributions in New York. Charities retained $58.9 million, or 31.9 percent, of the funds raised by telemarketers registered to solicit contributions in New York in 2001.¹ While some of the charities received more than that, many received much less than 31.9 percent and some received nothing at all. The remainder was paid to the fundraisers for fees and/or used to cover the costs of conducting the campaigns.

¹ In 2000, a total of $188.4 million was raised as a result of 586 telemarketing campaigns conducted on behalf of charitable organizations, with $59.3 million, or 31.5 percent retained by the charitable organizations.

The percent of funds that was retained by charity for the 588 telemarketing campaigns conducted during 2001 is broken down as follows:

Please Note -

1. For any campaign in which 100+% was received by the charity, the net to charity exceeds the gross amount raised. This may occur when the fundraising contract guarantees a minimum payment to the charity, regardless of the amount contributed and that guaranteed payment exceeds the gross amount contributed.
2. For any campaign in which Below 0% was received by the charity, the telemarketing campaign results in a loss to the charity unless sufficient uncollected pledges are eventually received by the charity. This may occur when the fundraising contract does not guarantee the charity a specific dollar amount or specific percent of the gross receipts, or when the contract does not hold the charity harmless from expenses/fees that exceed the gross amount contributed.

HOW THIS REPORT WAS PREPARED

The data in this report were obtained from financial reports filed with the Charities Bureau by professional fundraisers for telemarketing campaigns conducted on behalf of charitable organizations during 2001.² The filings are either final reports submitted after completion of a telemarketing campaign or interim reports submitted annually for campaigns conducted for a period longer than one year.³ The filed reports are verified by both the professional fundraiser and the contracting charitable organization.⁴ All of the charities listed in the report conducted telemarketing fundraising campaigns in New York State. The figures reported reflect the total amount of money solicited and are not limited to New Yorkers' contributions.

The report consists of six tables. Table 1 lists the names of the charitable organizations in alphabetical order, the professional fundraisers that conducted each organization's telemarketing campaign, the geographical location of each soliciting charity, the total amount raised in each campaign, the amount each charity retained, the amount of uncollected pledges and the percent of the total raised that each charity retained from the campaign.

Table 2 contains the same information as Table 1, with the professional fundraisers listed

² Information for fifteen telemarketing campaigns conducted during 2001 was not available on the date of publication of this report.

³ Data from interim reports is in italics. Readers should be aware that the final figures and ratios may change when a campaign has been completed and all income and expenses are reported.

first, in alphabetical order. Table 3 and Table 4 contain the same information as Tables 1 and 2, arranged in descending order by the percentage of the total amount raised that was actually retained by the charitable organization, with the charitable organization's name presented first in Table 3 and the professional fundraiser's name appearing first in Table 4. Table 5 contains the same information as presented in the other tables, arranged according to geographical location of the charitable organizations.⁵ Table 6 contains contact information for each of the professional fundraisers that conducted telemarketing campaigns.

Following each table is a supplemental table that contains information for those 2000 telemarketing campaigns whose financial statements were received after the printing of last year's Pennies for Charity. Figures reported in the supplemental tables are not included in any of the statistical analyses presented in graphic form.

Pledges that have not yet been paid to a charity are not reported as part of the total amount raised, but are reported in a separate column in each table.⁶ In addition, contributions other than money are not reported in the receipts' column of this report.

In reviewing the data in this report, the reader should keep in mind several factors that may affect fundraising costs. Identifying new donors may be more time consuming and thus more expensive than contacting previous contributors. An organization may conduct a

⁶ An uncollected pledge is a promised contribution that the charity has not received by the date of filing of a professional fundraiser's financial report with the Charities Bureau. Uncollected pledges may or may not ever be received by the charity. In some telemarketing campaigns, a donor may agree to pay a specified dollar amount over a period of months or even years. Reports of such campaigns will often show a large amount in the "Uncollected Pledges" column and small amounts in the "Net To Charity" and "% To Charity" columns. In each table, a $0.00 in the Uncollected Pledges column indicates that there were no uncollected pledges reported on the respective financial report or that there were no uncollected outstanding pledges by the date on which the fundraiser filed the report.

telemarketing campaign simply to test-market new fundraising ideas without any certainty that its campaign will prove efficient and productive. An organization may also achieve goals other than raising funds - such as public education or recruitment of volunteers - at the same time that it is conducting a fundraising campaign. Those other benefits will not be reflected in the revenue received by the charity. A newly created charity or one advocating new programs or new ideas may experience greater fundraising costs without any certainty that its campaign will prove cost effective.

The reader should also keep in mind that amounts raised in a particular telemarketing campaign may represent only a small part of a charity's fundraising activity and, therefore, may not provide donors with a complete picture of a charity's overall fundraising. Donors are urged to review the entire annual financial report of a charity when considering making a contribution and should not rely solely on this report when making such decisions.

TIPS

TIPS ON CHARITABLE GIVING

New Yorkers give generously to charities. In fact, each year they give over $10 billion to charitable organizations. Most charities are honest in their methods of soliciting contributions. However, there are some organizations that misuse fundraising methods, victimizing well-meaning people who only want to help a good cause.

The Attorney General's office regulates the conduct of charitable organizations and protects contributors from being victimized by unscrupulous fund raisers.

Fraudulent charitable solicitations have been the subject of many legal actions by the Attorney General's office. These actions compel deceptive fund raisers to follow the law or to stop doing business in New York. The Attorney General's office also tries to restore money that good-hearted New Yorkers give in the best of faith to charities.

For example, the Attorney General's office takes action against fraudulent fund raisers who solicit funds for charitable causes but use the money to line their own pockets. Actions by the Attorney General's office have resulted in the return of hundreds of thousands of dollars to the charitable purposes for which generous New Yorkers made contributions. Lawsuits by the Attorney General have forced illegitimate charities and their fund raisers to stop their misleading practices and money they have collected has been distributed to charities throughout the State. Legitimate charities need contributions to continue their good works. Charities that use illegal fundraising practices should be ordered to stop those practices and return money they have received.

Considering a Charitable Contribution

Find out what the charity will do with your money -- ask for information about its programs and ask for a copy of its financial report. Find out how much of your money will be used for charitable programs.

Be wary if the organization will not provide information about its programs and finances upon request. Honest charities will be happy to give you the information requested. In New York, they are required by law to do so within 15 days.

Ask what proportion of money given actually goes to support the charity's program and what proportion goes to administrative costs.

Charities do have legitimate and necessary fundraising and administrative expenses, so beware of claims such as "all proceeds will go to charity." Be careful of charities with names that sound impressive or resemble those of other organizations -- some organizations use names similar to those of well known organizations in order to confuse donors.

Be wary of emotional appeals that talk about problems but do not explain how money raised will be spent or what the programs of the organization are.

Mail Solicitations

Read the literature carefully to make sure it identifies the charity and tells what will be done with your money. If it does not, call or write the charity to ask for program and financial information before making a contribution.

Some organizations send fundraising materials that look like actual bills. Others enclose very real looking copies of checks and request matching funds. Remember, you do not have to respond. Read the information carefully.

You do not have to pay for or return merchandise mailed to you if you did not order it.

Be careful of appeals asking you to return something such as a questionnaire or survey. Such devices may be used to divert your attention from the organization's program and how it will spend your donation.

Solicitations in Person

Ask the solicitor for identification. A door-to-door solicitor should have written identification authorizing that person to solicit for the charity.

Inquire what the charity does with the money and if your contribution is tax deductible.

Request printed material describing the charity's program, how it uses its money, its address and phone number.

Solicitations Over the Phone

Don't fall for pressure tactics such as repeated phone calls or even threats. Remember you do not have to agree to donate at the time of the call or have someone pick up your contribution. You have the right to say no or to say you need more time.

Tickets and Merchandise Sales

Ask how much of the purchase price will go to the charity. If you are told that tickets will be given to an organization or individual, ask who will receive the tickets.

Giving to An Association of Police or Other Law Enforcement Group

Many people show their support of their local police by giving to police organizations. Unfortunately, con artists, taking advantage of the public's concern, make fraudulent solicitations.

When asked to give to a police organization, contact your local police or other law enforcement agency to check on the identity and the legitimacy of the group asking for the contribution. Be wary of a solicitor who uses coercive or abusive tactics or who promises that your contribution will entitle you to better police protection or special privileges. This is illegal.

IF YOU DECIDE TO CONTRIBUTE -

DO NOT PAY IN CASH

Give your contribution by check made payable to the charity.

Complaints

If you wish to make a complaint about an organization that has solicited your contribution, contact the Attorney General's Charities Bureau or the Attorney General's office nearest you.

STATE OF NEW YORK
ATTORNEY GENERAL
ELIOT SPITZER

Dear Friends:

New York is home to thousands of charitable organizations. Many of those charities engage the services of Professional Fund Raisers to raise funds on their behalf. Fund raisers are hired for many reasons. Some organizations do not have sufficient staff to raise funds. Others do not have the expertise necessary to conduct fundraising campaigns. Small organizations may view professional fundraising campaigns as a way to get more people involved in their causes.

Whatever your organization's reason for hiring a fund raiser, it is important to learn as much as possible about the fund raiser's experience and record before signing a fundraising contract. Remember - the fund raiser will be representing your organization in seeking support from members of the public.

Following the tips listed below should contribute to the success of your fundraising campaigns and assist your organization in avoiding the financial loss, bad reputation and other problems that may result from hiring an inexperienced or unscrupulous fund raiser.

Sincerely,

Eliot Spitzer

Make sure your organization is properly registered with the Charities Bureau and current in its annual financial filings.

Check with the Attorney General's Charities Bureau to see if the fund raiser and its professional solicitors are registered and have currently filed the required contracts and financial reports.

Find out from the Charities Bureau what other charities the fund raiser represents.

Ask the Charities Bureau for copies of the fund raiser's contracts with other charities to determine what the fund raiser agreed to do for those charities.

Ask the Charities Bureau for copies of the fund raiser's financial reports of fundraising campaigns conducted on behalf of other charities.

Ask the fund raiser for references. A reputable fund raiser should be happy to provide a potential client with the names, addresses and telephone numbers of some of its clients.

Contact charities for which the fund raiser has worked, find out what was promised, what was done, whether there were any problems and if the charity is satisfied with the work done by the fund raiser.

Make sure all contracts between your organization and a professional fund raiser are in writing as required by New York law.

Read all provisions of the contract before signing it. The contract should state clearly all of its terms. If something is unclear, the contract may need revision.

Consider whether funds solicited by the fund raiser should be received by the charity itself or by a bank or other fiduciary custodian instead of the fund raiser.

New York law requires that fundraising contracts include the following provisions:

- If funds are to be received by the fund raiser, within five days of receipt, all funds solicited by a fund raiser must be deposited in a bank account exclusively controlled by the charity.
- The charity has the right to cancel the contract without cost, penalty or liability within fifteen days after the fund raiser has filed it with the Attorney General.
- Clear descriptions of the services to be provided by the professional fund raiser and the financial terms of the contract.
- Names, addresses and registration numbers of both parties to the contract as well as the dated signatures of the fund raiser and the charity.

Follow activities of the fundraising campaign.

Review all written solicitations and scripts used by the fund raiser:

- Make sure that solicitation material accurately describes your organization and its activities.
- Solicitation material must include the name of the organization as registered with the Attorney General.
- All solicitations must advise potential contributors that they may obtain a copy of the soliciting charitable organization's financial report from the Attorney General or from the organization itself.
- Any solicitation conducted by a professional fund raiser or any of its representatives ("professional solicitors") must disclose the name of the specific professional solicitor, the name of the employing professional fund raiser and a statement that the solicitor is being paid to raise funds.

Make periodic visits to any telephone room used by telemarketers. Each person who is employed by the professional fund raiser to make calls on behalf of your organization must be separately registered with the Attorney General as a professional solicitor. Your visits will also enable your organization to learn what the public is being told about the organization.

Obtain the professional fund raiser's copies of invoices and receipts to be sure that vendors are paid on time. If they are not, they will probably seek payment from your organization.

Make sure that your organization is given periodic accountings of the fundraising campaign and that the fund raiser is keeping records of funds received and expended during with the campaign. Remember, your organization is responsible for all funds raised in your organization's name by a professional fund raiser.
