Experience

Mr. Bensinger has been responsible for a wide range of high-level assignments involving expertise in strategic planning; crisis management; operational management; turnarounds; financial management and reporting; mergers and acquisitions; regulatory compliance; spin-offs; restructurings; joint ventures; bank and investment community relations; securitizations; treasury; rating agency relations; and corporate governance.

Mr. Bensinger has been directly involved through senior executive roles in helping one of the world's largest insurance companies through a period of considerable corporate duress— helping shape strategies; performing financial management; providing liaison with internal and external stakeholders; and leading the company through one of the most comprehensive internal reviews and restatement processes in US corporate history.

Mr. Bensinger has held management and executive positions with national and international insurance and reinsurance companies in which he was called upon to achieve organic growth; perform turnarounds; establish new operating subsidiaries; execute mergers and acquisitions; and attain recapitalization.

Mr. Bensinger has demonstrated innovative leadership in helping companies achieve strategic goals and enhance enterprise value. As an example, bringing a reinsurance company public through a reverse merger with a public entity—a unique and unprecedented transaction at the time, involving the issuance of highly sophisticated financial instruments. The model was subsequently used for other insurance transactions within the industry. Another example with one reinsurer was leading the development of alternative risk and finite risk products, which were among the first in the reinsurance business.
